No Thanks!: Saying No To Alcohol And Drugs

Synopsis

It's hard to know what to say when older kids pressure you to do something you know is wrong. Blake is a fifth-grader with one thing on his mind: karate. He needs his friend's older brother, Jacob, to help him get ready for a big karate tournament. But Jacob's new friend, Ryan, has other ideas that could get all of them into a lot of trouble. What will Blake decide when the right thing to do is also the hardest thing to do? Blake's friend befriends a boy named Ryan. Ryan is drawn like an evil Disney character on every page. The story does not depict a common scenario involving pressure to use substances. Kids who feel pressured to use have to deal with resisting the influence of their friends, not some sinister looking new guy in town. Blake summons up the courage to Ryan that alcohol and pot aren't "my thing." The next page is a happily ever after scenario. In real life, a teen would be worried about the long-term implications of refusing to take part in what his friends are engaging in. Highly recommended. Good book definitely geared for grades 4 and up. It might be ok for 3rd grade as well

Very appropriate for the youngsters of this drug ridden world.
