Like Dragons Did They Fight

Synopsis

This book bravely bridges the gap between the Spiritual and the Temporal (physical) factors of addiction and addiction recovery. It pulls the essential elements of many psychological theories and fits them into an eternal paradigm as can only be seen through the eyes of those who are inspired by God. The reader will be taken on a journey from seeing the battle from high in the heavens down to the gritty and sweaty clashing of swords a warrior must experience day to day. We live in a time when many are in bondage before they are aware that there is a war. As with many examples in world history, one cannot get out of bondage with just will power and thought control. Warriors must be trained, and then trained some more, in the classroom and on the field. They must learn, that in order to escape the bondage they find themselves in, as did warriors thousands of years before: Like Dragons Did They Fight!

I have read many books on addiction recovery, and this one is the absolute worst! This author has no CSAT (certified s*x addiction therapist) training and has no business treating addicts or petitioning LDS church leaders to push his program, which is against church policy in the first place. Patrick Carnes has the best credibility on s*xual addiction therapy, no contest! Here are several (but not even all) of my concerns with this method: He has a parable about how kids get trapped in pography. In a nutshell, he likens it to righteous Nephites training for battle, doing all the right things, and innocently drinking water from a natural source. But low and behold, unbeknownst to them, the Lamanites had ever so slowly poisoned the water! Now these poor, innocent souls are intoxicated and cannot battle. I beg to differ, Mr. Harker. Even as young children, these kids knew what they were viewing was wrong from the very first look. He goes on to say how Satan learned from scientists how to manipulate the "Deviant S*x Chemicals" in our brains to get us to soothe our pains. Although addiction is a maladaptive way to cope with painful emotions, Satan can do nothing but lie to us. Our s*x drives are God given not "deviant", and Satan has no power to get in and "manipulate" chemicals in our brains! We are in control of our actions and thoughts. And the physical reactions in our bodies are natural consequences of self abuse. Satan has nothing to do with how our brains function. Because your brain can't tell the difference between real and imagined experiences, he has you tap into your body's "Warrior Chemistry" to produce an adrenaline rush.
